Confined Space Safety - Cal/OSHA Regulations Protect Workers

Working in a confined space is one of the most potentially hazardous work operations an employee may perform. Confined space operations involve the potential for exposure to both chemical and physical hazards. The most common cause of injuries involved with confined space operations is employee failure to recognize the space and evaluate hazards prior to entry. Cal OSHA has requirements for confined space operations, including training, outlined in Title 8 CCR 5156, 5157 and 5158.

The 8-hour confined Space training program will be an awareness level program covering regulations for confined and permit-required confined spaces, identification and hazardous associated with confined spaces and permit required confined spaces, operations for working within confined spaces and permit required confined spaces. We will also provide hands on exercises utilizing equipment, monitoring devices and procedures for confined space operations.

If one or more of the following conditions exist at any of your work areas you must be Confined Spaced trained. The area:

- Is large enough to enter and perform assigned work but has limited or restricted means for entry or exit and is not designed for continuous employee occupancy
- Contains or has the potential to contain a hazardous atmosphere
- Contains a material that has the potential for engulfing an entrant or has the internal configuration that could trap an entrant
- Contains other recognized serious safety or health hazards
