Beyond the Injury and Illness Prevention Program

In California, every employer is required by law to provide a safe and healthful workplace to his/her employees. In accordance with the California Code of Regulations, owners need to have an effective Injury and Illness Prevention Program (IIPP) in writing. There is a specific IIPP required for the construction industry, the Construction IIPP. What should you expect to see in an IIPP? It is a written plan that has the following elements:

- Management commitment/assignment of responsibilities
- Safety communications system with employees
- System for assuring employee compliance with safe work practices
- Scheduled inspections/evaluation system
- Accident investigation
- Procedures for correcting unsafe/unhealthy conditions
- Safety and health training and instruction
- Recordkeeping and documentation

In addition to the above, the Construction IIPP requires that supervisors conduct "toolbox" or "tailgate" safety meetings with their crews at least every ten working days to emphasize safety. Supervisors also need to hold periodic meetings to discuss safety problems and accidents that have occurred.

Who should attend?

- Owners
- Managers
- Superintendents
- Foreman
- Supervisors
